Adjudicator determines Odyssey Health Services met its duties to assist

An Adjudicator with the Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner has determined that Odyssey Health Services responded to an information request accurately and completely as reasonably as possible.

An individual felt the organization did not provide him with all the information he had requested. Adjudicator Wade Riordan Raaflaub found that the organization did not initially conduct an adequate search for some handwritten notes, but that the organization did eventually locate and provide those records.

In his decision, Riordan Raaflaub also determined that information that had been requested about payments to the organization and its staff and consultants was not information about the Applicant and confirmed the organizations decision not to search for that information under the Personal Information Protection Act (PIPA).
