

Data Privacy Day

January 28, 2015

MacDougall Centre - 455 6 St. SW
Calgary, Alberta

- 8:00 a.m. Registration and Refreshments
- 8:15 a.m. Welcoming Comments - Commissioner Jill Clayton
Alberta's Information and Privacy Commissioner Jill Clayton will welcome attendees and discuss some of the current issues and trends in access to information and protection of privacy impacting Albertans.
- 8:30 a.m. Cloud Computing -
Jason Fung, Solicitor, Alberta Justice and Solicitor General
Cloud computing is a hot topic and potentially the future of software and services delivery. From security to data ownership, it is beginning to mature as an industry. Moreover, the risks and rewards of cloud computing are becoming more well known as cloud computing becomes a part of our daily lives.
- 9:30 a.m. The eGirls Project: Gender, Privacy and Equality in Online Social Networking - Jane Bailey, Professor, University of Ottawa
The eGirls Project is focused on better understanding girls' and young women's firsthand experiences with online social media, including in relation to privacy, gender media stereotypes, cyberbullying and equality. Based on interviews and focus groups with girls and young women, the research revealed a complex picture of the online environment regarding gender stereotypes and limitations on privacy.
- 10:30 a.m. Refreshment Break
- 10:45 a.m. Accountability and Consent for Privacy Practices -
Rick Klumpenhower, Partner, Cenera
In a world of big data the need for organizational accountability has never been greater. This presentation will focus on the question: What are the arguments for focusing on accountability over consent to protect individual privacy?
- 11:45 a.m. Closing Remarks

This event is free to attend.
Space is limited, however, so please confirm your attendance by
